Undergraduate Thesis Award 2008

The Australia & New Zealand Regional Science Association International Inc. (ANZRSAI Inc.) is awarding a prize to an Undergraduate thesis undertaken at a higher education institution within Australia or New Zealand and submitted since 30 June 2004. This prize is sponsored by the Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development and Local Government.

The winning thesis will contain research which makes a significance and innovative contribution to regional and urban theory and/or policy issues and contributes to understanding regional structure and change. Research in disciplines including Economics, Regional and Urban Studies, Geographical Science, Modelling, Demography, Transportation, Industrial Organisation, Marketing, Resource Management, Environment, Tourism, Education, Sociology, Psychology or any other area of Social Science which contributes to the broad area of Regional Science are eligible for this prize. If warranted, more than one award will be offered.

The award/s will be presented at the dinner associated with the 2008 ANZRSAI Conference and the winner/s will be expected to attend and present a paper based on this thesis in the special session for award winners at the conference.
